

IT was not your run of the mill wedding the day Sue and Tom Connley tied the knot.

For starters, the nuptials took place deep in the Victorian Alps.

But that didn't stop 1200 people from turning up. It was a cattleman's wedding where the groom smartened himself up to the point of brushing off his hat, giving his moleskins a wash and trimming his beard.

Sue, the bride did it in style and arrived at the open-air church in a jinker decorated with everlasting daisies and escorted by her brother Bernard Briggs. Sue's three daughters by a previous marriage were the bridesmaids.

The wedding took place under a snow gum and the happy couple drove off in the neat little jinker owned by Dargo Plains cattleman Doug Treasure who is seen here taking Sue and Bernard to the ceremony. Years may elapse before another wedding is held in such a remote place.

SPECIAL DEAL POURED ON SITE

12,000 to 22,500 gls.

silo. U/ground,

concrete roofs.

Also pool

size

CONCRETE WORK

P.O.

Telep

DEPARTMENT OF VICTO

SUPER

IMPROVE FARM PROI