

Looking good

The mountain cattlemen have not gone far enough in their opposition to the Labor Government's giant national park proposal. Victoria's mountain country has never looked better, nor been more open to public access than it is now. Let us keep it that way for everyone's benefit.

For people

Beverley Broadbent (9/8) wants the alps for all to enjoy. So do the mountain cattlemen. Within a national park you not only cannot graze cattle, you cannot walk your dog, or hold a religious service. Conservationists have stated "parks are not for people".
